All,

I just confirmed the date of the site visit for the Freedom Center review will be February 13-14. Feb. 13 will be the main day; Feb. 14 will be for exit interviews and for the committee to begin drafting their evaluation report.

Jeff, do you think you or Kim Ogden should meet with the committee during the site visit? We normally don't do that for college-level center reviews, but could in this case given the prospective move of the center to a central administrative division.

Here is the complete list of confirmed external reviewers (we now have four):

Barbara Hannan, Professor of Philosophy, University of New Mexico

Edmundo Hidalgo, Vice President of Outreach Partnerships, Arizona State University

Daniel Jacobson, Professor of Philosophy, University of Michigan

Bob Varady, Research Professor, Udall Center for Studies in Public Policy, University of Arizona

This meets RDI guidelines that review committees must be composed of at least one UA member and have a majority external members. We could try to add an additional UA-internal person to round this out if you think it's necessary.

I will review the self-study report in early January and recommend revisions if needed. Our aim is to get the self-study report out to external reviewers by Jan. 25.

Regards,

Jane

The review committee was just set — I'm in transit and don't recall all names, but it's chaired by Bob Vardary of the Udall Center, which is in RDI, other members are Edmundo Hidalgo, a VP for outreach at ASU, and a philosophy professor from U Michigan (name escapes me will send it when at a computer). I was hoping to add a fourth external academic but have not found anyone who can do it before March, so I will keep it to these three in interest of time (3 is minimum RDI guidelines require).
